DETAILS

Stahl was selected as the general contractor to build a new two-story high school for one of the largest school districts in the state of Iowa.

This project included all of the components typically found on a major educational complex from a large commons area with an internal courtyard, classrooms, computer labs, media center, and gymnasium to a secondary auxiliary gymnasium, wood shop, auto shop, music facilities, auditorium, and a sports complex (with fields for football, baseball, soccer, track, and other sports).

Lee Harrison, our vice president of construction, was heavily involved with the success of this project from start to finish.
